

Tropical geometry and dissimilarity maps of trees

Filip Cools

May 8, 2009

We will start with a short introduction of two research topics, namely tropical geometry and dissimilarity maps of weighted trees, which at first sight seem to have no relationship. The link between these two topics is given by tropical Grassmannians and some recent results will be discussed. A motivation comes from computational biology. We will finish with some open questions.