Motivated by service systems, such as telephone call centers and emergency departments, we consider admission control for a two class loss system with periodically varying parameters and customers who may renege. Assuming mild conditions for the parameters, a Markov decision process formulation is developed.